Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35

U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 21-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Van Gorp et al (U.S. Pat. 5,607,840) in view of Balslev et al (U.S. Pat. 4,438,100) and Oles (U.S. Pat. 4,145,451).

Van Gorp discloses a process wherein a mucosal protein hydrolysate is added to protein-containing food or feed. Van Gorp also discloses the preservation of the mucosa starting material using well known preservatives. See col. 4, lines 17-34 and 45-50. Note specifically Van Gorp's disclosure of the suitability of a heating step in the preservation methods as recited in applicant's claim 24. Note further that because it contains the same material, mucosa, Van Gorp's preserved product would inherently have the same ash amount as recited in the claims.

Van Gorp differs from the claims in that Van Gorp does not use the claimed peroxide or phosphoric acid as a preservative. However, each of Oles (see, e.g., abstract) and Balslev (see, e.g., abstract) make it clear that both phosphoric acid and peroxide were well known preservatives in food and/or pharmaceutical applications. Thus, the claimed substitution of well known preservatives for those used in Van Gorp must be considered an obvious substitution of one known equivalent preservative for another. That is, because the artisan of ordinary skill at the time of applicant's invention would have had a reasonable expectation from Oles and Balslev that phosphoric acid and/or peroxide would have functioned equivalently to the preservatives disclosed by Van Gorp, the artisan of ordinary skill would have been motivated to have substituted Oles' phosphoric acid and/or Balslev's peroxide for the preservatives disclosed by Van Gorp.

Lastly, it is noted that Van Gorp does not disclose the bacterial count of the preserved mucosa product, as recited in applicant's claims 26 and 27. However, because the entire objective of adding preservatives according to Van Gorp's disclosure is the prevention of bacterial growth in the mucosa products, it is respectfully submitted that the determination of an acceptable degree of preservation as measured by bacterial contamination would have been a matter of routine optimization on the part of the artisan of ordinary skill, the degree of bacterial contamination clearly being a result-effective parameter optimized by adding more or less preservative agent. Thus, absent some demonstration of an unexpected result inhering from the claimed process, a holding of obviousness under § 103(a) is clearly required.
